HOPE IN HARD TIMES...AND GOOD

2013 was a good year for the Jefferson County Historical Society. One highlight was a partnership with the Washington State Historical Society and Humanities Washington which brought the traveling exhibit “Hope in Hard Times: Washington During the Great Depression” to the Jefferson Museum of Art & History. It was mounted in the basement, next to the jail cells, which most visitors felt was an appropriately depressing location. The real message of the exhibit was one of survival and courage during difficult times. We took the opportunity to mount a companion exhibit about coping with the Great Depression in Jefferson County and found that the county did not suffer as much as more urban areas of the state during that period. People still went to movies at the Rose Theatre, went sightseeing on the new Olympic Highway and took home paychecks from the new paper mill in Port Townsend.

As Jefferson County emerges from our nation’s recent recession, it’s good to note that our residents have continued to place a high priority on preserving our heritage. Memberships and donations keep growing. Lectures and events draw standing-room-only crowds. Summer history camps are full. Donations of art and artifacts continue to arrive almost daily. Epicurean Happenings sell out as soon as they are announced. Our oral history collection keeps increasing. Attendance at our museums is growing. Our wonderful volunteers continue to keep our five sites and county-wide programs running at record levels. In hard times, and good, JCHS fulfills our mission to “actively discover, collect, preserve, and promote the heritage of Jefferson County in the State of Washington.”

William Tennent
Executive Director
January
The Board of Trustees’ Annual Retreat was held. Julie Marston was re-elected president with Dorothy Cotton Banks as vice president. Teachers county-wide continued to utilize the traveling Museum Trunks. The First Friday Lecture featured Norm Stevens with “Wood & Sail to Steam & Steel.” First Saturday Gallery Walks began and continued throughout the year. Free Day at the Museum and Family Fun Day activities began and continued throughout the year.

February

March
A major art exhibition “Scapes: 1867-1992” opened at the Jefferson Museum. The Port Townsend Victorian Festival featured the JCHS Scholarship Fashion Show and walking tours of Downtown and Uptown Port Townsend. Three Document Preservation Classes were held at the Research Center. The First Friday lecture featured Bill Baccus with “Olympic Glaciers: Past, Present, Future.”

April
Shore excursions for American Cruise Lines began and continued throughout the spring. The First Friday Lecture featured “Town Tavern Tales”. The travelling exhibit “Hope in Hard Times: Washington During the Great Depression” opened with a companion exhibit focused on Jefferson County during in 1930s.

May
The Rothschild House and the Commanding Officer’s Quarters opened for the season with new textile exhibits from the JCHS collection. “Craigdarroch Castle” was the subject of the First Friday Lecture by Bruce Davies. JCHS participated in ArtScapes.

June
Historic Walking Tours of Uptown and Downtown Port Townsend began for the summer season. Craig Romano presented “Backpacking Washington” as the First Friday Lecture. Film critic Robert Horton did a program on “Films of the Great Depression”. JCHS sponsored “Big Bang” at the Key City Public Theatre and partnered with the “Steampunk Hootenanny”.

July
Summer History Camp took place at the Commanding Officer’s Quarters. “Sin at Sea Level” was re-installed and a major new exhibit “Maritime Art: 1880-2013” opened at the Jefferson Museum.

August
A booth was created by for the Jefferson County Fair and stories were collected by the Oral History team. The annual Historic Preservation Awards were presented. Lance Weller, author of Wilderness spoke at the First Friday Lecture.

September
Bob Bartlett presented “York, the Forgotten Hero” at the First Friday Lecture. Fall cruise ship shore excursions began and continued through October. The Woody Dennis and Jim Ball families held a benefit art sale for JCHS.

October
Author Nancy McDaniel spoke about her book A Sound Defense at the First Friday Lecture. The annual Volunteer Appreciation Party took place and the Volunteer of the Year Awards were presented. Benefit Epicurean Happenings began and continued through the fall.

November
Dan Brown, author of The Boys in the Boat was the First Friday Lecture speaker. The annual West End Weekend took place at Kalaloch Lodge featuring lectures and field trips. A Members’ Open House ushered in the holiday season.

December
“Santa at the Museum” was celebrated in partnership with the Main Street Program.

The year ended with First Night, a New Year’s Eve celebration of heritage and art in and around historic City Hall featuring the new tradition of “raising the anchor.”
EXHIBITS AND COLLECTIONS

This year, with the help of four volunteers, we unpacked, photographed, made support mounts and relocated into cabinets over 400 artifacts. All photographs and new locations were entered into Past Perfect, our museum database. We unpacked and hung eighty-seven paintings on the new storage art racks. We re-packed approximately fifty small framed artworks in acid-free boxes. I built two 4’ x 8’ art storage racks to house several large art collections that were given to us this year.

We agreed to loan our Edenshaw cane, which belonged to James Swan, to the Vancouver Art Gallery. Arrangements were made to have the cane researched and appraised. Much paperwork was needed to legally transport it to Canada. I built a soft box to transport it and made arrangements with Artech to move it to Vancouver.

Laura Reutter and I gave two art-handling classes.

Throughout the year, I took weekly temperature and humidity readings in the Collection Building and sent reports to lead people on the Building Committee, who have been working very hard to find solutions to the environmental issues we have with the new building.

We curated and installed two art exhibits in the Courtroom, “Scapes” and “Maritime Art”. JMAH accepted and mounted a traveling exhibit, “Hope in Hard Times,” from the Washington Historical Society. We created an answering exhibit that showed how the depression affected people in Jefferson County. We sent our part of the exhibit to Kalaloch for West End Weekend. I curated and installed a textile exhibit featuring clothing from the years of the Great Depression for the Rothschild House’s annual textile exhibit. In the fall, work began on a new exhibit, “From Far Away: Settlers and Communities of Jefferson County” which was installed in the Fire Hall gallery in February of 2014.

Thanks to the extraordinary efforts of volunteers, most of the Research Center’s computers that were running on the Microsoft XP operating system were updated to Windows 7. One that was too old was retired; as were the two downtown computers. We also updated our oral history transcribing equipment and purchased a new large format scanner and computer (thanks to a generous donor).

Again, thanks to volunteer effort, the new JCHS website (www.jchsmuseum.org) is up and running beautifully.

I worked with Becky Schurmann on two art exhibits and two history exhibits, providing research, images, text and editing.

I worked with Megan Duvall of the Washington State Department of Archeology of Historic Preservation to get it our historic properties inventory online through the State of Washington’s website, WISSARD: http://www.dahp.wa.gov/learn-and-research/find-a-historic-place

There are currently 68,701 records and 25,088 images available to search via the online site at http://www.jchswa.org. In 2013 there were 6,092 individual searches.

Research Center volunteers worked 5,143.5 hours in 2013.

Rothschild House

The Rothschild House has a talented and devoted group of volunteers who enthusiastically provide guests with the history of the Rothschild family and house. They welcomed 2,641 visitors and donated over 1,800 hours of service during the season.

The textile exhibit tied nicely into the “Hope In Hard Times” traveling exhibit at the Museum of Art & History. Emilie Rothschild was the sole resident in the home during the Depression; the docents were able to relate interesting stories about Emilie’s life during these tough times.

The Sunday afternoon Uptown Walking tours start at the Rothschild House. The tours add to the visitors experience and appreciation of the history of both the Rothschilds and of Port Townsend. The three volunteer tour guides, Linda Spurgeon, Linda Scott and Nancy McDaniel dress in full Victorian attire when leading their tours. These ladies provided a carefully researched presentation in a most enjoyable way. Visitors’ comments about the tours were overwhelmingly complementary.

Rothschild House volunteers also help maintain the garden. Linda Spurgeon redesigned the old rose planting bed with deer-resistant lavender shrubs. She harvested lavender flowers and packaged them into sachets to be sold to visitors. The proceeds from the lavender sachets went to purchase fall flowering bulbs.

At the end of the season the “Friends of the Rothschild House” gathered for lunch in the home of Shelly Reiss. Many wonderful stories were shared and it was an opportunity for the group to discuss the 2014 season.

Commanding Officer’s Quarters

We had a good year of attendance thanks to our extended hours and volunteers from the State Park “camp host” program. A big boon came from being open the week between Christmas and New Year.

History Camp was another grand success! We ran the obstacle course again and hiked to the lighthouse, to Artillery Hill, the Harbor Entrance Command Post, the beach and back again. We also engaged the kids in games around the COQ and history of the Fort and the COQ itself. We ended the week with tournaments in checkers, ring toss, kite making and the obstacle course finals. We had award ceremonies at the end of camp with most all parents attending and, of course, every kid got at least one award.

We wrapped up the year with our Christmas Week opening, all decked out for the holidays. It was well appreciated by the many visitors who came.

Steve Bailey, COQ Manager
Here at the Olympic Peninsula Gateway Visitor Center we are the Ambassadors for Jefferson County Tourism and the Jefferson County Historical Society. We support and showcase all tourism related business in Jefferson County. We serve our county by providing up to date information on all aspects of our area to visitors. Every year we present our county heritage with exhibits in our museum section from the collections of the Jefferson County Historical Society. The Visitor Center also showcases the cultural side of our county with six different art exhibits during the year to promote this eclectic aspect of our area as well.

• The Gateway Visitor Center provided current tourism information and Jefferson County history to 9,502 visitors on site here in 2013. We were at work 362 days directing the traveler to the diverse activities and communities that make our Olympic Peninsula region the gem of the Pacific Northwest.

• Our volunteers donated over 1,000 total hours of effort in 2013 to promote businesses and Jefferson County. And, with the help of these volunteers, we installed an emergency exit; and then power washed and repainted the exterior of our Visitor Center.

• In our work outside the Visitor Center each year we also manage a request based mailing program promoting Jefferson County that made contact with another 19,654 prospective visitors by mail in 2013.

• Our Visitor Center provides ongoing website review and support for the Olympic Peninsula Tourism website, www.olympicpeninsula.org, and a Face Book page.

• The Gateway provides oversight and funding to support the Jefferson County “Activity Map”; this brochure style map is our Jefferson County promotional mailing piece. The Information side of the map includes lodging, restaurants, museums, parks, campgrounds, farms, wineries, marinas, and golf courses in our area. The map side has icons for activities ranging from fishing, and hiking trails, to bird watching.

• The Gateway Visitor Center was also involved as lead in Jefferson County Lodging List that is used to produce publications like the Olympic Peninsula Travel Planner, and the Port Townsend, Jefferson County Getaway Guide.

• Our Visitor Center staff contributes oversight and development as a voting member for both the Jefferson County Tourism Coordinating Council and the Olympic Peninsula Tourism Commission for media marketing programs.
The JCHS Education Committee works year-round to support the mission to increase knowledge, understanding and appreciation of Jefferson County history through projects and programs directed at residents and visitors of all ages, with particular attention to school-aged children.

Including:

- A day at the Research Center for two classes of Chimacum Middle School students learning to do research was arranged by the committee. Genealogical Society members assisted half of the class with research while the other half was treated to a tour of the Collections. These students were the first students ever to receive a tour of the JCHS Collections.

- The Victorian Fashion Show, during Victorian Heritage Days, is produced by Scholarship Chair, JoAnn Bussa. Donations from the fashion show fund the JCHS Scholarship which is awarded to a Jefferson County student(s) pursuing a history or history related college degree. The two scholarships in 2013 were awarded to Britta Janssen ($500) and Christine DeLeo, a college student and PTHS graduate ($600).

- First Friday Lecture Series, a program implemented by the committee, assists with the choice of speakers and the greeting of guests and collection of donations at each lecture throughout the year. This year had perhaps the best attended lectures to date with the venue having to be moved to a larger location to accommodate the large attendance for “Town Tavern Tales, Truth and Fantasy” and Daniel J. Brown, author of “Boys in the Boat”.

- A new program; “Family Fun Day at the Museum” was established this year by Julie Marston with assistance by team members. The program provided a fun craft activity for children and adults alike on the first Saturday of each month to coincide with the free Saturday for county residents. One of the museum trunks was usually on display also.

- To go along with the first “Family Fun Day”, Julie Marston designed a booklet for the new Art exhibit entitled, “Scapes”, a hand-out booklet given to each child/family attending. This booklet helped each child “look” at each painting to find cityscapes, seascapes or landscapes in the art museum and then produce their own painting using water colors, colored pencil, or crayons at tables set up in the court room.

- On display in front of the museum on the sidewalk for the Wooden Boat Festival in September, committee members displayed the Sailor and Navigation Trunk for people passing by to see on their way to the festival. There was much interest shown in the items from the trunk.

Each year Jefferson County 7th grade students make use of the Sailor and Navigation trunk in their classrooms during their Maritime Discovery Program studies.
HISTORIC PRESERVATION AWARDS

The Jefferson County Historical Society presented a total of five historic preservation awards for 2013; one Mary Johnson Award and four Certificates of Appreciation. Four of the awards were presented aboard the schooner Adventures on September 5. One award was previously presented on Memorial Day at the Greenwood Cemetery in Chimacum.

The Mary Johnson Award is the society’s highest honor and is given to projects that meet the stringent guidelines of the Secretary of Interior Standards for Historic Preservation. The 2013 Mary Johnson Award was presented to the schooner Adventures for completion of its Centennial Restoration Project, a five-phase project begun in 2010 adhering to the highest preservation standards. Launched in 1913, the Adventures remains an authentic example of living maritime history.

Winners of the Certificates of Appreciation were Dean Nelson for maintaining and documenting Chimacum’s historic Greenwood Cemetery; Steve and Kris Burns for ongoing respectful maintenance and expansion of the Solie House in Nordland; Bob Garten for documenting the history of Shine; and Steve and Deborah Moriarty for respectful restoration and adaptive use of the Phillips House at 1041 Jefferson Street, Port Townsend.

Of Dean Nelson, the Historic Preservation Awards Committee wrote: “Dean purchased the Greenwood Cemetery about 30 years ago and made it his goal to preserve the history of pioneering families and residents of Jefferson County. A walk through the cemetery with him provides a basic history of Chimacum Valley.”

Of the Solie House, the committee said, “We were very impressed with the commitment and dedication of the Burns family in restoring and preserving this family home. Constructed in 1890 by Tollef and Pauline Solie, the original home was a modest 16’ x 24’ cabin. With a growing family, expansion was necessary and an upper floor and half basement were added. At this point, a third addition is underway, keeping the house as close as possible to the original design and character.”

Committee chair Chris Prescott said of Bob (Cougar) Garten, “His book Shine: Family memories and history of the community where I grew up documents the history and families of a Jefferson County community told from a personal point of view by a longtime resident.”

Of the Phillips House project, committee member Margaret Mazurkiewicz wrote: “It is apparent that Steve and Deborah Moriarty are dedicated to keeping the house as close as possible to the original style and character of the era. The exterior of the house retains a number of original architectural details and materials while interior elements such as the staircase, storage closets, doors, wainscoting and fireplace remain very much intact. This project serves as an example of historic preservation for other owners of historic buildings in Port Townsend.”

The awards have been presented annually since 1978 and are selected each year from county-wide nominations. They include awards for restoration of historic structures as well as programs and individuals who help preserve the history of Jefferson County.
